

Confessions of a Superhero

I have a three year old son, so I have become pretty well-versed in Superheros. I have found I much prefer them over my daughter's Princess'. When I saw the trailer for "Confessions of a Superhero" my heart lept with anticipation.

According to all the reviews I could find, it is supposed to be touching and heart-felt, not just a satire on these people who have made a living dressing up as superheros for tips.

Here is the trailer:

The official website for the movie "The Real Superhero" will give you more of a hankering for the movie.

"Confessions of a Superhero" will be released in theaters starting November 2, 2007. Can't wait to see it.