

Daily Photo: Cigar Store Indians of Orange County

I love Cigar Store Indians and started snapping pictures of them throughout Orange County about a month ago. Here are three; in Orange at the Circle, in an antique store in San Juan Capistrano, and in Frontierland in Disneyland.

I'm going to try posting a daily song along with my photo.

Thanks to the magic of BLIP.fm, I am able to post a song and you are able to listen to it—free. If you aren't familiar with BLIP.fm, it's a bit like the love child of iTunes and Twitter. It's a community of people who love music but, it's also like a jukebox, playing the songs you choose—again, for free.

When you add DJ's to your group, you can listen to their music as well—did I mention it's free? If you want to join me there, click on the big, yellow BLIP.fm button and get yourself distracted by yet another social network. Seriously, Facebook? How two months ago...

The Daily Song was Elivis Costello's Shipbuilding.
