

Friday Five: Five ways to know you are (really) late for your own funeral

For Halloween a very creepy Friday Five.

How to know you are really late for your own funeral.

- 1) Your children, who are now fully grown, cut you off in the parking lot with the Escalades they bought with their inheritance money.
- 2) You unknowingly compliment your husband's new wife on her shoes.
- 3) Reading your eulogy, your brother keeps referring to you crossly as his "late, VERY, VERY late, beloved Sister."
- 4) The pew you are sitting in is dedicated "in memory of" you.
- 5) When you go to sign your guest book, your fingers shatter into a million pieces.

Inspired by Beetlejuice when I wrote this ☐

Happy Halloween!
