

Huntington Beach Car Show

I am playing catch-up in my posting...The Mom Blog, the up and coming "Alive in Wonderland" column and starting a new travel blog "Checking in" has put me behind—one week behind to be exact.

Snapped these pictures at the Car Show in Huntington Beach last Saturday. Whenever I am downtown it makes me a little nostalgic for the old Huntington Beach, my old HB. I miss the charm and HATE the pink stucco. But, underneath the chain restaurants and teal-trimmed buildings, I can still hear the heartbeat of my hometown...boom boom...boom boom...boom boom

Notice the license plate..."Wzatree"

It's nice to know the "Locals Only" attitude is still alive and well...boom boom...boom boom...

(Side note, this picture was taken at Wahoo's downtown and when I asked the guy if I could take a picture of his shirt, he said, "Sure, dude." I haven't ever been called a dude before, that's new.)