

“I think you are a total babe!” Wait, no I don’t

I was looking through my seventh grade yearbook and came across this inscription from James.

From the looks of it, he originally thought he was writing in Wendy’s yearbook.

When he realized his mistake, he quite resourcefully crossed out her name and replaced it with mine ...then he crossed out that whole “I think you are a total BABE!” bit.

He could have made a tad more of an effort. At least he still wanted me to have a “rad summer!”

Go to “Sincerely ‘Fro Me to You!” at We are THAT Family, where bloggers can post their (preferably embarrassing) stories from the past.