

Today's snapshot: Right back at 'ya Foolery

So, this is the classic blog photo: A shot of the blogger, taken by the blogger in their mirror. Almost every blog has at one time or another sported this picture. My guess is it's because:

- A. blogger has been banned from mentioning blog ever again to friends, hence, hindering ability to ask someone to take picture for blog
- B. always the dead of night while blogging and everyone else is fast asleep
- C. blogger likes the natural diffusion that usually occurs in one of these shots due to glare
- D. blogger thinks they look cute that day and no one is at home to take picture

I took this picture to post as a tribute to Foolery, one of my favorite blogs. She uses it as her profile picture but I suspect her reasons are much more interesting and less petty than the ones listed.

If you are a fan of Foolery, or have another reason (see A-D above) please post your own obligatory "Blogger in the mirror" shot.