

Friday Five: Five Uses for Those Annoying Magazine Inserts

Five uses for those annoying magazine inserts that, no matter how thoroughly you think you have removed them, always seem to fall into your bath while reading.

- Use as coasters for guests you have absolutely no interest in impressing

- Picking up dead flies in the window sill

- Gather up hundreds (not hard to do) and send them to the Editor of your favorite magazine in protest, hoping they will send you free product as a good will gesture

(will not work if your favorite magazine is Foreign Affairs or the like. Sorry Larry)

- To write tardy notes on when your daughter is late for school

- Wet, pound into mush, mold into a pot shape, decoupage and plant your favorite perennial inside

(Martha Steward Living inserts only)
