

The downside of having your husband read your blog

Yesterday, I brought a new purse (having a little to do with this). I fessed-up straight away to Larry about it. "Look at my purse...I got it on sale at Marshall's," he looked unmoved by my thriftiness. I then swore up and down that I would not buy another "purse" for an entire year.

He then said, "Does that include Totes, Clutches and Handbags?" Drat! The downside of having a husband who reads your blog... He obviously took meticulous notes on this, Handbags, Totes and Clutches 101: A lesson for my male readers.