

I'm a guest blogger over at Grow-a-Brain

Today, I'm guest blogging over at Grow-a-Brain. I pieced together a post all about my girl Jane Austen and Hanan was kind enough to accept it.

Check it out here—Jane Austen's World.

Grow-a-Brain is a daily themed, eclectic blog. Basically, sending you to some of the weirdest, wildest and funniest stuff on the internet.

Not the content you get from your aunt in emails with subjects like "You have got to see this" or "Sooooooooo funny!" but honest to google: bizarre, intelligent and interesting.

It is one of the blogs I get excited about when I see a new entry in my Bloglines.

He was the first blog ever to link to me (Note found in the fridge) and I was so grateful, and still am—thank you Hanan!