

Today on “Mommy’s mind is not a toy”

 Today on The Mom Blog

I have kind of reworked my “The (More) Real(istic) Housewives of Orange County” story—added pictures and a couple of other things. Head on over to The Mom Blog at ocregister.com to read the whole thing.

“Just wondering, who watches The Real Housewives of Orange County? Being a Real Housewife of Orange County you would think I would be eagerly tuning in to see what “we” are up to. But, truth be told, I only catch it if it falls anywhere near “Flipping Out” or “Project Runway.”

It’s not that I think they misrepresent Orange County Housewives. I know plenty of gals just like them.

My girlfriends and I are a different breed of Orange County Housewife; sometimes unkempt and unpowdered, with younger kids and nicer husbands.

Here are some scenes and excerpts from OUR “(More) Real(istic) Housewives of Orange County (just HW for short)”:

—HW hastily throws Michael’s receipt out the window of speeding SUV before her husband finds out she spent $75 on ribbon.”

Click here for the entire list plus pictures...