

Where you'll find me

I have heard a smattering of people say they are confused as to where I am writing. SOME people think it is a little confusing, so since I have new people coming to my site lately and because I keep piling it on, here is a quick rundown. You can always just come here to (Emphasis Mine) and I will link to where ever I am for the day—except if it is someplace not on the internet, which would be weird.

“Alive in Wonderland” is my column at ocregister.com, which is The Orange County Register’s website. A new story comes out every Monday and Thursday.

“Mommy’s Mind is Not a Toy” is my blog on The Mom Blog at ocregister.com. I post there twice a week too.

“Checking in with Broughton Hospitality” is Larry’s (my husband’s) company blog that I curate and write for almost daily. (Today has a nice big picture of Neil Finn!)

These are my most consistent things. Of course I am always commenting on my favorite blogs around the world and I “Twitter-away” in my margins.

Picture by artandghosts’s on Etsy: The Writer.