

Historic day for our Country and I made this video about it

I made this video yesterday as I went about voting, getting my free cup of coffee at Starbucks, and watching the election results. It has been a whirlwind of excitement and pride as we elected our first African American President.

I've watched the end of the video with clips of both speeches 20 times and it still gives me chills. It was a historic day for our Country.

My experience on Election Day 2008 from Suzanne Broughton on Vimeo.