

Skywatch Orange County: Old Friends

I took this photo at the Bolsa Chica Wetlands. These women sat on the bench to rest after walking just a short distance from the wooden bridge. From far away I could tell they were old friends. They would grab each other's arms when they laughed and they laughed almost the whole time.

As I got closer I tried to eavesdrop for you, as you expect me to do, but all I heard was one say to the other, "I wouldn't mind leaving," and with that, they didn't say another word and both got up and walked back across the wooden bridge.

I love to include Orange County skies in with all the other skies from around the world in SkyWatch Friday.

Today I'm listening to The Waterboys'
This is the sea